Appendix 2:

Methods for Constructing the Survey Questionnaire

To specify the detailed aspects of intellectual property rights (IPR) as factors companies take into account when deciding to establish a foreign subsidiary, we use the well-known indexes of patent rights, such as Ginarte-Park index (1997), Park-Wagh index (2002), and Park-Lippoldt index (2005) (the Park Indices). The Park Indices, however, are meant evaluate the protection of patent rights. In this survey, we used other indices to account for the relationship between foreign direct investment (FDI) and the intellectual property (IP) system.

The Park Indices reveal the level of patent protection. The indices comprise five criteria: (i) coverage, (ii) duration of protection, (iii) enforcement, (iv) membership of international treaties, and (v) restrictions on patent rights. Compared with the Park Indices, the characteristics of our survey's indices are mainly as follows:

- (1) To capture the influence of IPR systems on the decision to expand, we took account of several indices to determine expansion by multinational companies (MNCs) to ASEAN countries.
- (2) Our survey is not restricted to patent; we include other IPR, e.g., trademark, design right, utility model, and copyright.
- (3) To capture the detailed problems regarding IPR in ASEAN countries, our survey used the more detailed indices in the questionnaire survey sheet.

Compared with the Park Indices, ours are arranged by IP categories as follows:

1. Indices related to the creation, modification, and allocation of IPR (patent, trademark, design patent, utility model, copyright)

- (1) General matters: (i) IPR prosecution timeline, (ii) the related costs for obtaining IPR, (iii) IPR maintenance fee, (iv) correction of IPR, (v) IPR invalidation proceedings, and (vi) co-ownership of IPR
- (2) Specified index of patent: (i) home country application system, (ii) secret patent system, (iii) exercises on compulsory licensing rights
- (3) Specified index of trademark: types of trademark, rescission of trademark registration based on non-use

- (4) Specified index of design patent: partial design system ('design patent protection for a part of products' in the survey sheet)
- (5) Specified index of utility model: utility model technical opinion
- (6) Specified index of copyright: (i) employee works, (ii) copyright registration, (iii) scope of neighbouring rights protection
- (7) IP-related area: establishment and enforcement of a system similar to Bayh-Dole

2. Indexes related to the protection of IPR

- (1) General matters: (i) IPR term, (ii) IPR injunctions, (iii) IPR damage, (iv) level of criminal punishment for copyright infringement;
- (2) Specified index of IP-related area: (i) import and export control on counterfeit goods (injunctions), (ii) technology know-how protection system and the level of protection, (iii) trade secret protection system and the level of protection (not including technology know-how).

3. Indexes related to effective utilisation of IPR

- (1) General matters: (i) IPR assignment system, (ii) IPR licensing system, (iii) co-ownership of IPR
- (2) Specified index of IP-related area: (i) IPR licensing condition: licensor's warranty obligation, rates control for license fee, objects of license contracts, control of license contracts, contractor registration system, the invalidity of grant-back clauses (assignment-back, exclusive or non-exclusive grant-backs, reciprocity), invalidity of NAP clauses; (ii) a transparent and predictable tax system on transfer pricing; (iii) export controls on technology transfer.

4. Others

- (1) State of headhunting and an employee's duty to refrain from competition
- (2) Membership of international IPR law treaties

Table A.1 shows a simple comparison between the Park Indices and the index used in this survey. It simply proves that there is no related index related to effective utilisation of IPR in the Park Indices.

Park Indices	This Survey's Index
