About the authors

Maaïke Okano-Heijmans is a Senior Research Fellow at the Clingendael Institute. Her main research interests are economic diplomacy and international relations in East Asia. Maaïke is Clingendael’s scientific coordinator in the EU’s Asia–Pacific Research and Advice Network (#APRAN) and coordinator of the PROGRESS framework, encompassing all projects for the Dutch Ministries of Foreign Affairs and Defence. She is a lecturer of Leiden University’s Advanced Master in International Relations and Diplomacy (MIRD) and a Board member of the European Japan Advanced Research Network (EJARN).

Anita Prakash is Director General (Policy Design Department) of ERIA. Her key role is policy support to leaders and senior officials in the governments of Southeast Asia, East Asia and Oceania on political economy, growth, narrowing development gaps, regional economic integration and related matters, using the research results of ERIA. She works closely with ASEAN member states and their Dialogue Partners in the Asia–Pacific Region, and also in Europe. She is presently a Visiting Research Fellow at the Graduate Institute of International and Development Studies, Geneva.

Wouter Zweers is a Junior Researcher at the Clingendael Institute, where he focuses on a wide range of EU-related issues, including EU foreign policy and the European Neighbourhood Policy.

Brigitte Dekker is a Research Assistant at the Clingendael Institute. She has contributed to this report as a data analyst and (info)graphic designer.

I. Executive Summary

The need for strengthened connectivity between Asia and Europe has been recognised by the Asia–Europe Meeting (ASEM) since the 10th ASEM Summit in 2014 in Italy. The 11th ASEM Summit in 2016 in Ulaanbaatar agreed to make ASEM responsive to emerging demands for connectivity within a framework of economic prosperity, institutional linkages, and social-cultural exchange and cooperation. To this end, it established the ASEM Pathfinders Group on Connectivity (APGC).

In view of the unique institutional nature of ASEM and the diversity within the ASEM framework, the ASEM Connectivity Inventory consolidates the lessons learned in the field of connectivity from ASEM activities held between October 2014 and July 2018. As such, it supports the APGC to further develop the direction of and framework for policy processes of ASEM’s connectivity activities.

Two key conclusions emerge from the inventory of ASEM activities. First, a considerable number of ASEM activities touch upon one or more of the three connectivity pillars, but their relevance and contribution to advancing physical, institutional or people-to-people connectivity in member countries are not fully evident. The uneven distribution of events over time and topics, along with inadequate follow-up, and indeterminate implementation of outcomes are not uncommon in activities under the three pillars of ASEM.

Second, the formal structures of ASEM – such as Ministers’ meetings and Summits – are rather results-oriented. These structures constitute ASEM’s strength as they typically provide clear guidance and direction. The APGC can benefit from guidance by Ministerial and SOM meetings on transport, economy, and finance – the hard aspects of ASEM connectivity – as these bodies have welcomed the APGC’s formation and expressed the expectation that their work will be linked with that of the APGC.

Based on these findings, this ASEM Connectivity Inventory recommends the following:

- To identify focus areas of ASEM connectivity, building on the crucial step that was taken with the intended adoption of 5 focus areas for ‘Tangible Areas of Cooperation in the Field of Connectivity’ (TACC).
- To consider a greater role for the APGC (and the SOM) to better manage the diversity and uneven outcomes of ASEM connectivity activities through a careful selection of topics, better coordination among stakeholders, wider participation (of youth and women in particular), and above all a more unified way of presenting findings and outcome documents to provide a shared sense of direction and follow-up.
- To better address the gap between present-day ASEM connectivity activities and future or longer-term connectivity needs. The APGC could facilitate this makeover.
- To enhance the performance of ASEM’s informal meetings– Track 1.5 and Track 2 dialogues – with the clear focus and direction of its formal structures.
- In moving forward and to seek value addition for ASEM connectivity activities, the APGC could establish linkages with other multilateral bodies, global compacts and non-ASEM programmes of Asia–Europe cooperation in the field of connectivity.
- To further revamp the information gathering and sharing functions of ASEM Infoboard with a view to streamlining ASEM data sharing and communication.

To rationalise, coordinate and disseminate connectivity-related activities in ASEM is the way forward for the APGC and will make ASEM more responsive and relevant to the peoples of Asia and Europe.

II. Introduction

The Asia–Europe Meeting (ASEM) is a collective effort to foster greater connectivity among the geographies, economies and peoples of Asia and Europe. At the 10th ASEM Summit in 2014 in Italy, ‘Leaders underscored the significance of connectivity between the two regions to economic prosperity and sustainable development’. The 11th ASEM Summit in 2016 in Ulaanbaatar agreed to make ASEM responsive to emerging demands and the need for connectivity, and to this end established the ASEM Pathfinders Group on Connectivity (APGC). The APGC was tasked with providing a commonly agreed definition of connectivity; a list of activities that meet this definition; undertaking specific connectivity activities; providing key elements for an ASEM connectivity plan of action; and a realistic assessment of ASEM’s value proposition regarding connectivity.

ASEM Connectivity was defined at the APGC meeting in Nay Pyi Taw in 2017. It was established that:

Connectivity is about bringing countries, people and societies closer together. It facilitates access and is a means to foster deeper economic and people-to-people ties. It encompasses the hard and soft aspects, including the physical and institutional social-cultural linkages that are the fundamental supportive means to enhance the economic, political-security, and socio-cultural ties between Asia and Europe, which also contribute to the narrowing of the varying levels of development and capacities.

As stipulated in the APGC Terms of Reference (TOR), once a definition of connectivity is agreed, an inventory of existing ASEM activities that meet ASEM’s definition of connectivity would be prepared. This report presents an inventory of ASEM activities held between the ASEM Milan Summit in October 2014 and July 2018, to support the aforementioned APGC objectives. This inventory and the accompanying qualitative assessment of connectivity activities will also support the APGC to explore possible focus areas of ASEM cooperation and the mechanisms and processes that will help mainstream connectivity into ASEM activities. In fulfilment of the objectives sought in the APGC TOR, the qualitative assessment and the SWOT analysis facilitate a realistic understanding of ASEM’s value proposition – and resourcing requirements – regarding connectivity. The recommendations in the final part of the report are aimed to support the APGC in its advisory role to senior officials on matters related to ASEM connectivity and the way forward.

III. Methodology

The primary source of information for the ASEM Connectivity Inventory is the ASEM Infoboard (www.aseminfoboard.com). The synthesis of outcome documents and qualitative assessment of ASEM activities are complemented by information derived from the Asia–Europe Foundation (ASEF) Annual Report.

The ASEM Connectivity Inventory’s qualitative assessment of activities and recommendations to APGC are guided by two important documents: the Asia–Europe Cooperation Framework (ACEF 2000); and the APGC Terms of Reference (TOR).

An ASEM Connectivity Inventory database, sourced from ASEM Infoboard, was prepared for this report. The database includes all ASEM events since the ASEM Milan Summit (2014) up until July 2018. It should be noted that because of the wide divergences in themes and objectives of these activities/events, the authors first examined all activities and subsequently synthesised their outcome documents, follow-ups, and other significant aspects such as contribution to regional and sub-regional policies on connectivity. This helped in assessing the capacity and scope of how ASEM events contribute to ASEM connectivity, and their relevance for the APGC’s definition of connectivity.

Due to the lack of a common framework for organising ASEM activities, the qualitative assessment of activities had to be based on a synthesis of outcome documents, agreed follow-up steps and policy decisions, their actual implementation, monitoring and follow-up events, and obstacles in achieving any or all of these. In certain cases, the qualitative assessment of ASEM activities – including ASEF events – goes beyond the APGC definition of connectivity. This is helpful in making robust recommendations to the APGC for mainstreaming connectivity into ASEM activities and streamlining the mechanisms for ASEM activities.

Based on the synthesis of outcomes and the qualitative assessment of activities, a SWOT analysis has been conducted for ASEM’s role in the field of connectivity and scope for the APGC in enhancing connectivity between Asia and Europe. The SWOT analysis is also instrumental for identifying the critical gaps that the APGC will have to address in its future activities.

The ASEM Connectivity Inventory Database includes a numerical distribution of activities across ASEM pillars, regions, countries, outputs and focus areas, etc. The number-based information is intended to assist the APGC in streamlining ASEM connectivity activities across the three pillars and is visualised in the Infographics included in this report.

IV. Synthesis and Qualitative Assessment of ASEM Events and Outcome Documents

The ACEF 2000 and the APGC Terms of Reference, accompanied by the APGC definition of ASEM connectivity, are the guiding documents used for the synthesis of outcome documents from ASEM activities. This section examines the outcome documents of all listed activities with a view to establishing their fit in the APGC definition of connectivity. Documents of 140 activities were studied and their outcomes were synthesised. A total of 112 activities were found to fit into the APGC definition of connectivity.¹ For the qualitative assessment of activities, outcome documents were analysed to identify agreed follow-up steps and policy-related decisions, including their actual implementation, and follow-up events.

Additionally, any evidence of impact by these outcome documents on (sub-) regional and national policy-making processes pertaining to Asia–Europe connectivity has been taken into account. The critical gaps and uneven choice of focus areas have also been considered for this assessment and are reflected in the recommendations to the APGC.

The qualitative assessment of ASEM’s role in the field of connectivity makes use of the key principles outlined in ASEM’s connectivity definition. Based on types of stakeholders and participation, all ASEM activities are categorised under Track 1, Track 1.5, and Track 2.

1. The total of 112 includes activities on topics of Trade and Economic Cooperation, Disaster Management Resilience, Sustainable Development, Transport, Energy, ICT/Digital Technology, Finance, Education and Research, Culture and Tourism, Human Rights and Development. It excludes Defence and Security, Migration, ASEM Summit and follow up meetings, and ASEM Days.

Track 1 – Inter-governmental

The more formalized structures of ASEM activity produce more focused results and are therefore highly relevant to ASEM connectivity. ASEM Summit Statements carry clear observations and desirable directions for ASEM. The outcomes of ASEM ministerial meetings contain mostly clear guidance, directions and action points.

The ASEM Foreign Ministers’ Meeting (FMM) may mandate the Senior Officials’ Meeting (SOM) for more precision in agenda development, event planning, coordination of activities, monitoring of results, linking results into ASEM pillars and, where possible, into global programmes of similar topics.

Only a few topics, such as transport, education, culture, finance and labour, have established ministerial-level meetings and SOM processes.

Available outcome documents of ASEM activities (forums and symposiums, etc.) do not establish whether these outcomes are/were used in SOMs reporting to ministers.

Likewise, ministerial meetings’ outcomes do not reflect whether relevant activities were reported/brought to ministerial meetings/SOMs, and therefore whether they were integrated into the ASEM processes and results.

Ideally, line ministry SOMs should have an overview of all ASEM activities conducted under its subject matter.

Some Track 1 ministerial meetings (Education and Transport) have specific and result-oriented guidance for connectivity.²

The education sector is most active in the social and cultural pillar.

Activities of educational and cultural connectivity have diverse centres for planning, coordination and participation.

2. For example, education ministers’ guidance to the ASEM education secretariat, transport ministers’ guidance for the Asia–Eurasia Expert Group Meeting (AEEG) and the feasibility study by ASEM think tanks for a synergic approach to regional transport plans, etc.

3. Reporting and monitoring of the past workings of the ASEM Education Secretariat (when it was held by Indonesia) are not reflected in the ministerial meeting documents. They are also not available through links. The ASEM Education Secretariat moved to Belgium in 2017 for the next five years. The ASEM Duo programme for student exchange between Asia and Europe has its secretariat in South Korea. This is, however, a Korean initiative under the ASEM brand and not a formal ASEM programme. The hybrid nature of this programme is an important guidance for future connectivity frameworks of the APGC.

4. This event’s output went to the East Asia Summit (EAS), not to ASEM.

Documents on the Infoboard do not detail the monitoring of education-related activities, their results and outcomes.³ With different administrative structures for education activities, ASEM needs to give special attention to this aspect. The diversity aspects of this activity are reported in the recommendations to the APGC.

From the information available on the Infoboard, it could not be determined whether the ASEM Education Secretariat reports its activities to the ASEM Track 1.

Common standards for the output and feedback of output into connectivity-related policies and programmes among member countries are important to enhance Asia–Europe connectivity and to address future concerns of ASEM.

Ministerial and SOM meetings on transport, the economy and finance – the hard aspects of ASEM connectivity – have welcomed the APGC’s formation and expect their work to be linked with that of the APGC.

Track 1.5 – Governments plus academia, business and other stakeholders

Activities under this category include ASEM forums, symposiums, roundtables on varying subjects of interest and applications.

The subjects dealt with include – with infrequent consistency and timing – nuclear energy safety, SME financing, immigration, countering radicalisation, equal opportunities for women, sustainable development, disability and ageing, tourism, disaster rescue and relief,⁴ green shipping, technical and vocational education training, pharmaceuticals and diagnostics, sanitary and phytosanitary measures, and food security, etc.

The organization and outcomes of an activity are dependent on the host country's interest, level of coordination, reach, and its ability to follow up on the activity's results.

Lists of participants, speakers, their diversity and affiliation are not reported uniformly in the documents posted on the Infoboard.

The quality of information and quantity of documents vary greatly. A final report is available on the Infoboard for only one-fifth of events.

Programmes and agendas are the most common available documents.

The above points suggest that ASEM's capacity to draw concrete action points from its activities is very limited.

Track 1.5 activities should be reviewed, focus areas created, coordination mechanisms put in place, and reporting processes standardised.

The planning and setting up of activities under relevant themes, and ensuring adequate follow-up, should be strong concerns of the APGC and SOM.

ASEM has robust horizontal linkages between the three ASEM pillars; and strong vertical linkages between the different tracks (government, academia and civil society) of ASEM connectivity. ASEM and the APGC can use this strength to create a clear framework for ASEM activities that will ensure coordination among coordinating countries, the host country and organisations, and can facilitate a steady flow of activities that produce tangible thematic results.

The Asia–Europe Foundation (ASEF) attends many Track 1.5 ASEM events and meetings, but its role in organising these activities is not clear, either from event/meeting-related documents, or from the ASEF Annual Report.

Track 2 – Academia youth, artists, journalists, parliamentarians and issue-based specialists

ASEM's Track 2 activities are more intermittent than Track 1.5, and usually involve only a limited number of people. They include problem- or issue-oriented conferences, seminars, workshops and lecture-type events.

ASEF is instrumental in organising Track 2 activities.

The Asia–Europe Young Leaders Summit (ASYLS) stands out as an annual and regular Track 2 activity.

ASEF organised journalists' and editors' forums are other examples of Track 2 activities.

ASEM Summit Statements recognise Track 2 activities as contributions to ministerial meetings and ASEM processes.

The ASEF Annual Report to the ASEM Summit lists the Track 2 activities conducted in a reporting year. The 2017 Annual Report covered culture, education, governance, sustainable development and public health.

The sustainability of these activities' outcomes and their potential for upscaling are not always mentioned.

ASEM's economic and political pillars are not adequately addressed in ASEM Track 2 activities.

ASEF activities and their outcomes are not listed on the ASEM Infoboard. They can be accessed through ASEF's website and are listed in ASEF's Annual Report. Guidance or policy direction for ASEM from these activities is not found prominently in the report.

V. SWOT Analysis

Strengths

ASEM is widely recognised as a platform for Europe Asia connectivity

Formalised structures of ASEM activity produce focused results relevant to ASEM connectivity

ASEM has robust linkages among the three pillars of ASEM activities and between ASEM pillars and different tracks (government, academia, civil society)

ASEM has a wide geographic stretch and its programmes reach from the Atlantic to the Pacific

The ASEM is informal and flexible so that, in principle, it can easily address new aspects or challenges related to connectivity.

Weaknesses

ASEM activities are not consistently and completely updated on the ASEM Infoboard, hampering the monitoring of results, outcomes of activities and public awareness

Stand-alone activities dilute the focus, impact and sustainability of connectivity efforts

Fewer activities exist on several topics that are crucial for the future of ASEM connectivity – including energy, the digital economy, financial management and cooperation

ASEM's capacity to draw concrete action points from Track 1.5 activities (ASEM forums) is limited

It is not possible to assess the access to or participation of citizens in ASEM connectivity activities

Opportunities

The time is right: governments across the globe recognise connectivity's growing importance

Political momentum: Ministerial and SOM meetings for transport, economy and finance welcome APGC formation and expect to link their work to the APGC's work

More financing opportunities are made available by individual governments, regional and multilateral institutions

SDGs give new impetus to interlink and connect activities across the three ASEM pillars

Rationalisation of connectivity-related activities can enhance Asia–Europe connectivity

Social media outreach may enhance visibility and awareness and strengthen people-to-people connectivity

Lessons learned from multilateral development banks and institutions may be synthesised for practical use in the Asia–Europe connectivity context

Threats

Normative and political differences in approaches to connectivity in theory and practice may add to friction between ASEM partners

ACEF 2000 principles of mutual interest and mutual benefit may be undermined, as activities do not benefit all members. Sub-regional activities should respond to real needs

Financing of connectivity plans and growing debts may undermine longer-term connectivity planning

Some ASEM partners lack administrative capacity to turn the results of ASEM activities into policies

VI. Recommendations and Follow-Up Actions for the APGC

The APGC has a unique role in steering ASEM's activities closer to the definition and key principles of ASEM connectivity.

Its role in advising the SOM on how to mainstream connectivity into ASEM activities and how to streamline mechanisms can be further strengthened by identifying flagship activities in each ASEM pillar; deepening institutional support for these activities; streamlining the outcome processes and ensuring their effectiveness; coordinating the strategy and role allocation; eliminating rudimentary activities; creating interlinkages with the works of multilateral bodies in Asia and Europe; and ensuring diversity and accountability in the programmes. Based on the findings of this Inventory, it is recommended to identify focus areas of ASEM connectivity and put in place a streamlined mechanism to enhance ASEM connectivity.

An important step towards this end was taken with the intended adoption of the 5 focus areas for 'Tangible Areas of Cooperation in the Field of Connectivity' (TACC), identified at the June 2018 meeting of the APGC and SOM.

Taking this forward, the work plan should be monitored by the SOM and the APGC, and reported to the ministerial meetings of Transport, Education, Economy, Finance, Culture and Tourism. Streamlined documentation, organisation and reporting of TACC activities are crucial for ASEM connectivity.

Finally, a revamped ASEM Infoboard has a crucial role to play in disseminating ASEM connectivity activities.

Defining connectivity and adding focus

- ASEM should focus on making ASEM connectivity relevant and useful for governments and people. The ACEF 2000 lays down the wider principles of ASEM and the APGC has defined connectivity for the ASEM.
- ASEM connectivity activities must be able to contribute to policy processes in member countries.
- The APGC has a role to play in ensuring that activities fit into the definition of connectivity and produce substantive results or add value to the key principles of connectivity.
- Focus areas for ASEM connectivity activities should address practicality, cost- effectiveness, and contribution towards the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) and inclusive growth.

Special tasks from ministerial meetings

- Transport ministers, economic ministers, and education ministers have spelled out specific tasks for the APGC to interconnect the three ASEM pillars. These tasks must be integrated into the focus areas of ASEM connectivity. Some of the important ministerial recommendations under the economic and financial pillar – such as the Trade Facilitation Agreement Plan (TFAP), ASEM Investment Promotion Action Plan (IPAP), ASEM Eurasia Expert Group (AEEG) and ASEM think tanks' work on feasibility studies of synergy in transport plans – need to be addressed.
- An inventory of the formal ASEM-mechanisms – such as the Education Secretariats (hosted by Indonesia and Belgium), the ASEM Infoboard (managed by ASEF), and the Steering Committee of the Informal Human Rights Seminar – can be carried out with a view to analysing their effectiveness, strengthening their accountability, and utilising the outcomes of their activities in the 5 focus areas for TACC.

Diversity of themes and uneven outcomes

- The diversity in and uneven outcomes of ASEM connectivity activities should be managed through a careful selection of themes, better coordination among countries, a shared sense of direction, and follow-up and monitoring of results.
- Physical connectivity activities – including energy, the digital economy, financial management and cooperation – are relatively few in number, especially in Europe. To the extent that this showcases a gap between the real needs of people and ASEM activities, this point should be addressed as a matter of priority.

Diversity in participation

- ASEM activities in the social and cultural pillar require a greater diversity of participants and outreach to larger groups of stakeholders and participants.
- Participants in education exchange programmes, summer universities and youth leadership summits, etc., appear to be selected from a limited pool of citizens and are not widely known across Asia. Provision of details on participants to Infoboard should be made mandatory to ascertain the true reach and diversity of activities among the people. Similarly, transparency in the selection of institutions, teachers and students through a wider dissemination of programmes is very important.
- The data show that ASEM activities create interlinkages, but mostly among people who are already informed on ASEM activities. ASEM activities must ensure a regional spread in Western and Southern Europe, Southwest Asia and Oceania, which are underrepresented in ASEM activities.

Multilateral organisations and ASEM

- ASEM connectivity will be strengthened by importing the lessons of multilateral organisations – like the IMF, World Bank, the Asian Development Bank, the European Central Bank and the ASEAN+3 Multilateral Research Organisation (AMRO) – into its activities, without having to reinvent the wheel. These organisations have best practices and the (technical) know-how to contribute to ASEM's economic and political objectives, as well as to sustainable development, financial management and cooperation activities.
- Conversely, ASEM can share its lessons with other multilateral organisations, including with newer institutions such as the AIIB and NDB. ASEM can also provide meaningful inputs to the G20 Sherpa process.

Other global compacts and ASEM

- ASEM should have a voice in other global compacts, including the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development, the Addis Ababa Action Agenda 2063, the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction, the Paris Agreement, the Istanbul Programme of Action and the Almaty Programme of Action, etc. The ASEM 12 theme of 'Global Partners for Global Challenges' justifies this outreach to global programmes.

Nurturing non-ASEM mechanisms of Asia–Europe connectivity

- The Trans-Eurasia Information Network (TEIN) and the EU-ARISE programme in ASEAN are fine examples of Asia–Europe connectivity, whose results should feed into the ASEM concept of connectivity. The APGC can draw inputs from such connectivity programmes between Asia and Europe and seek value addition for ASEM connectivity activities.

VII. The Way Forward

In June 2018 the APGC and SOM agreed to work towards 5 focus areas for 'Tangible Areas of Cooperation in the Field of Connectivity' (TACC) to bring necessary focus and spur interest among ASEM members' activities for enhanced cooperation in the field of connectivity.

Focus areas

Sustainable connectivity

Future connectivity

Trade and investment connectivity

People-to-people connectivity

Security challenges linked to connectivity

Building on the recommendations in part 5 of this report and with a view to realising the APGC and SOM's tasks in focus areas for TACC, an ASEM Connectivity Organigram has been developed to rationalise, coordinate and disseminate connectivity-related activities in ASEM.

This ASEM Connectivity Organigram outlines the linkages between the various ASEM processes (Summits, Ministerial meetings and SOMs) with the co-chairs of the APGC as well as with host countries/host organisations and other multilateral institutions. It also suggests how connectivity-related activities and their outcomes may be monitored and synchronized, and in turn fed into ASEM ministerial meetings and summit mechanisms. To keep ASEM connectivity activities relevant and in tune with policy needs of member countries, the TACC mechanism proposes regular monitoring and updating of activities by the co-chairs of APGC to the SOM and other relevant ASEM processes. If ASEM partners so decide, a TACC 'coordination unit' could support the APGC co-chairs' activities, analogous to the ASEM Education Secretariat.

ASEM plays a crucial role in advancing connectivity in the Asia-Europe region, and with the global community outside ASEM. Therefore, this Inventory also recommends that ASEM exchanges best practices and outcomes from the relevant focus areas of the TACC with other global and regional programmes that have substantial influence on ASEM members. All sides stand to benefit also from greater alignment between ASEM activities and established non-ASEM connectivity programmes between Asia and Europe such as TIEN and EU-ARISE.

A streamlined and more focused effort on working for tangible areas of connectivity cooperation is the best way forward for the APGC, SOM, and ASEM overall.

Advancing connectivity in ASEM

The Asia-Europe Meeting (ASEM) is an intergovernmental process to foster dialogue and cooperation between Asia and Europe. Presently it brings together 51 countries from Europe and Asia, plus the EU and the ASEAN Secretariat.

Since the 10th ASEM Summit in October 2014, ASEM set out to enhance Europe-Asia connectivity to further economic prosperity and sustainable development. ASEM connectivity is about physical infrastructure, institutional linkages and people-to-people ties. It covers all the three pillars of ASEM: economic, political and sociocultural.

Leaders stressed the key role of science, technology and innovation in promoting inclusive socio-economic growth and job creation. They agreed to enhance cooperation in science, technology and innovation, and to promote the joint development and deployment of innovative solutions in order to address common societal challenges and to strengthen the trans-regional mobility of researchers and innovators.

Sustainable development is at the core of the Millennium Development Goals and the UN post-2015 development agenda under discussion. Science, technology and innovation are the driving force for economic growth, social development and environmental protection, which are among the most important dimensions of sustainable development.

Overall, the content of meetings must be put centre-stage with the focus on a limited number of key issues. ASEM should have a sharper focus on a smaller cluster of issues which allow for real exchanges of views, ideas and experience-sharing. Enhanced connectivity requires the engagement of all stakeholders, including industry and the think-tank and academic community. In the end, ASEM’s future hinges on continued economic interdependence and increased strategic engagement between Asia and Europe.

During the ASEM Senior Officials’ Meeting (SOM) held on 13-14 October 2014 in Milan, Italy, ASEM Senior Officials welcomed Thailand’s proposal to host the “ASEM Symposium on the Future Direction of ASEM”. The main objective of the Symposium was to take stock of ASEM’s achievements so far and, in view of these achievements, set out ASEM's future direction. Of particular interest is how to increase the involvement of non-governmental bodies in ASEM and how to increase ASEM's relevance and visibility in the long-term.

The present tendency is that lifelong learning research offers new knowledge for devising solutions suited to different contexts in order to renew the agenda. This brings along three main recommendations:

1. Developing states can hardly afford to ignore the lessons that strong states using heavy investment in education tend to get there first.
2. Specific challenges for Confucian learners

3. Balance the ICT hype with educational strategies that address the relevance and efficiency of the use of these systems in relation to specific contexts.

The ASEM Forum on Lifelong Learning 2015 themed Renewing the Agenda for Lifelong Learning took place on 9-12 March 2015 in Bali, Indonesia to tackle the urgent need for lifelong learning in Asia and Europe.

1. The networks of national information centres in the European and Asian regions are encouraged to work closely with regard to inter-regional cooperation and information exchange on recognition matters.
2. The effective cooperation mechanism, as well as cooperation activities shall be jointly constituted and implemented by all national information centres and those institutions with responsibilities for national information centres through respective regional networks.
3. Inter-regional cooperation is not confined to national information centres or those institutions with responsibilities for national information centres through respective regional networks. Other institutions with responsibilities for recognition of qualifications in other regions are encouraged to participate in inter-regional cooperation activities.

Education experts from ASEM support the idea of an “ASEM Recognition Bridging Declaration”, which combines the Convention on the Recognition of Qualifications concerning Higher Education in the European Region (Lisbon Recognition Convention) and the Asia-Pacific Regional Convention on the Recognition of Qualifications in Higher Education (Tokyo Recognition Convention).

The seminar focused on the theme, “Effective, Transparent and Sustainable Nuclear Safety Infrastructure”, aimed at continuing discussions on nuclear safety and to foster Asia-Europe capacity-building and cooperation in nuclear safety.

1. The floor agreed on the importance of international cooperation, especially with neighbouring countries, to enhance the effectiveness and sustainability of nuclear safety infrastructure.
2. Participants agreed that the regulators are not in the position to judge which technology is better. Therefore, those countries interested to introduce NPPs should consult all the types available in the market.

3. It was underlined the importance of specific education on nuclear and physics, and also advanced trainings and fellowships to enhance the expertise, in addition to increasing the number of personnel for both regulatory body and utilities.
