

Acknowledgements

This study was implemented by a study group under the Economic Research Institute for ASEAN and East Asia (ERIA), including the Ministry of Energy, Brunei National Energy Research Institute (BNERI), and a Malaysian energy-efficiency expert from Green Technology Solutions PLT Malaysia, Ir Leong Siew Meng. I would like to acknowledge the support provided by everyone involved. I would like to also express my gratitude to the members of the study group: The Sustainable Energy Division of the Ministry of Energy, BNERI, and Ir Leong. Special thanks go to Mr Shigeru Kimura, the ERIA President's special adviser on energy affairs, for his outstanding leadership of the study group.
